NJ race now a toss up

Raleigh, N.C. – After trailing by nine points in a PPP survey of the contest a month ago, Jon Corzine has now pulled to within a single point of Republican challenger Chris Christie in his quest for another term as Governor of New Jersey.

Christie is at 40% to 39% for Corzine and 13% for independent candidate Chris Daggett.

Corzine's improvement is coming for two key reasons. The first is that he's consolidating his share of the Democratic vote. Where a month ago he was getting 64% of the vote from within his party, he's now earning 70%.

The other is that Christie is losing some Republicans and independents to Daggett. In September Christie had 79% of the Republican vote. That's now 73% and over that same period of time Daggett has gone from 7% to 13% with GOP voters. Among independents Corzine's position is basically unchanged from a month ago. But Christie's dropped from 48% to 42% with independents with Daggett improving from 16% to 19%.

By a margin of 48-34 Daggett voters say that Christie would be their second choice. That 14 point lead with 13% of the electorate means that the independent is basically costing the Republican nominee two points on the margin, something that could make the difference in a close election.

“Pretty much every poll in the last two weeks has confirmed the new reality of the New Jersey Governor's race: it's a toss up,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “Democrats are getting on the same page with Jon Corzine and Chris Daggett's giving people disgusted with both candidates a place to go. It's going to go right down to the wire.”

PPP surveyed 571 likely New Jersey voters from October 9th to 12th. The survey's margin of error is +/-4.1%. Other factors, such as refusal to be interviewed and weighting, may introduce additional error that is more difficult to quantify.

Complete results are attached and can be found at www.publicpolicypolling.com.
