Texas Senate narrows

Raleigh, N.C. –Though Kay Bailey Hutchison’s retirement created an open seat, in January it seemed as though Republicans would have no problem winning the race. However, the race has tightened considerably since then. Though the Republicans still have the advantage, if the Democrats run a strong candidate or draw a weak opponent, Texas could once again send a Democrat to the Senate.

Republican Lieutenant Governor David Dewhurst runs strongest. He leads actor Tommy Lee Jones 43-39, former general Ricardo Sanchez 45-37, and former Comptroller of Public Accounts John Sharp 43-37 (49-31 in January). Former Dallas Mayor Tom Leppert has a narrower lead, topping Jones 38-37, Sanchez 38-35, and Sharp 39-38 (42-30). Former Solicitor General Ted Cruz trails Jones 37-38, leads Sanchez 41-32, and leads Sharp 40-36. Though independents favor the Democrats in every matchup, neither party receives much crossover support, thus giving the Republicans the edge in a state where they have a 44-35 advantage.

None of the candidates are well known; Dewhurst is the only candidate a majority of voters are willing to give an opinion of. Among the voters who are willing to give an opinion, all politicians are in negative territory. Dewhurst is best liked among the Republicans with a favorability spread of only 27-28, followed by Leppert at 11-21, and Cruz at 6-19. Unlike the politicians, Jones is quite popular among those who will venture an opinion with a 28-14 spread. He is followed by Sharp at 19-20, and Sanchez at 15-18. Interestingly, Jones is just as popular among Republicans 25-12, as he is among Democrats 27-16. While Jones is popular across both parties before running for office, if he takes the plunge this crossover appeal might not last.

“Democrats would need a lot of things to break their way to pick up this seat but it’s not completely outside the realm of possibility,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “Certainly their prospects look better than they did earlier in the year.”

PPP surveyed 795 Texas voters from June 25th to 27th. The margin of error for the survey is +/-3.5%. This poll was not paid for or authorized by any campaign or political organization. PPP surveys are conducted through automated telephone interviews. PPP is a Democratic polling company, but polling expert Nate Silver of the New York Times found that its surveys in 2010 actually exhibited a slight bias toward Republican candidates.
